

cation should be submitted as early as possible to the Work Camp, Black Mountain College, Black Mountain, North Carolina.

Black Mountain has conducted a Summer Work Camp since 1941. During these years the Work Camp for architectural students has been especially valuable. The Work Camp's active laboratory in architecture will be again under the direction of A Lawrence Kocher, distinguished modern architect, who heads the Black Mountain Department of Architecture. It provides field experience and supplements the drafting board and classroom work in field surveying, construction work, and building supervision. This year's Camp will make special use of local building materials, and will deal also with new materials, economical construction, and post-war planning. Such institutions as Harvard University have contributed a number of graduate students to the Work Camp of Black Mountain College.

Seminar on America

The Seminar on America is planned to provide an opportunity for qualified newcomers to this country with specialized training to accelerate their adjustment to American community life and to get a better understanding of American democracy and history. Emphasis will be placed upon principles and methods of education.

The Seminar should especially interest adults who need to improve their English and their general orientation to the American community and to American education as related to their professions, as well as those professional people interested in the Seminar program who are in need of a summer's rest and adjustment period in pleasant surroundings. Courses will provide intensive tutoring in written and oral English, lectures on America, American history and government, literature and education. As the College will be in session throughout the summer, members of the Seminar group will be free to participate in all campus activities and social events and in contacts with students and teachers, who represent many different sections of America and a number of foreign countries. They will share such college interests as instrumental and choral music, dramatic productions, art and architecture projects, and will have access to the College's recreational facilities and the College library and music library. They may, if they wish, observe or take part in the College's regular work program of farm, building, and maintenance tasks. Fees of $110 will cover all expenses of board, room, and college tuition for the six weeks' session. Applications may be addressed to Dr Herbert A Miller at the College.

A savings plan

At the time of the armistice the American armed forces will find themselves somewhere in Europe, Africa, Asia, and Australia. Several additional months will pass before they will see American shores again. When eventually demobilization begins, say in 1945 or 1946, there will be many among the veterans who had been forced by the war to interrupt their studies, or who had not been able to start them. Many among them may be inclined toward these studies. The war will have